PLAN TO ALLOW LARGER FIRMS TO SHUT SHOP SANS GOVT. NOD

"The Labour Ministry has proposed that factories with up to 500 workers be allowed to lay off workers or shut shop without seeking government permission, in a bid to give firms flexibility in hiring and firing employees."

At present, factories with up to 100 workers are allowed to do the same, according to the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947.

"There has been demand from the industry to increase the threshold limit for factories from 100 workers to 500 workers."
